To achieve this, however, the underlying global interrelationships must be investigated, understood, and considered by decision makers.

By pursuing a degree through this programme at the WiSo Faculty, you will apply the latest research and appropriate solutions to questions with practical, real-world relevance to courses at your home and partner universities. Thereby, you will develop an understanding of the role of leadership in different intercultural environments and effective approaches to strengthen ethical behaviour in business.

PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

Preparing you for future challenges

The CEMS MIM is a pre-experience postgraduate degree. It is the pioneer in modern international management education and was founded by the University of Cologne (Germany), HEC (France), Bocconi (Italy), and ESADE (Spain) in 1988. The CEMS MIM has consistently ranked among the Top 10 in the Financial Times Ranking of “Masters in Management” for many years.

Business Project

One highlight of the curriculum is a business project during which you work on current managerial topics in close cooperation with a company representative. The project’s goal is to apply scientific theories and methods to the issues at hand and to derive concrete recommendations. It includes conceptual and application-oriented elements, such as student presentations, case studies, discussions and guest speakers from the field.

Link to the practical world

One strong feature of the programme is the practical contact you, as a student, will receive. Guest lecturers and skill seminars establish and promote direct exchange between companies and students. We emphasise academic rigour and practical relevance to educate you through broadly-skilled and international management leaders.
